

Cable Management

Open space office is now a future trend, instead of screen partiions. It gives more flexibility, communication and less tension office environment. Normally we have two ways to do the cable management.

Traditional Way

Bury the cable under the flooring. It is neat when it covered.

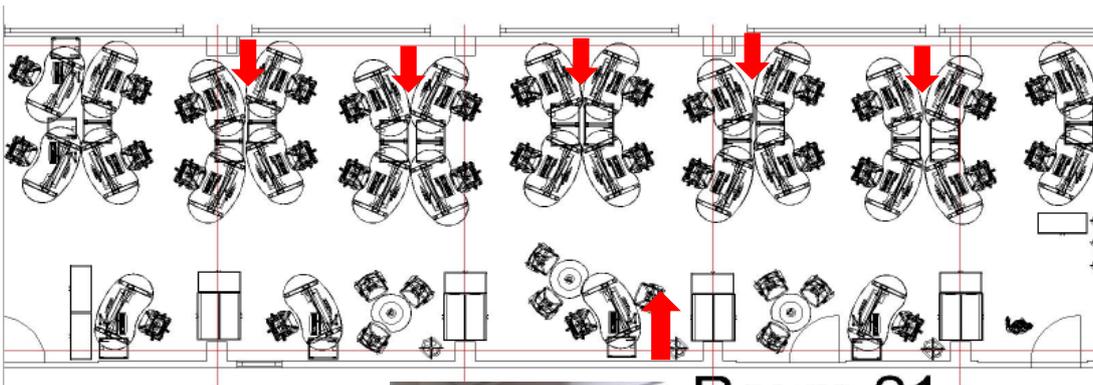

When the plug inserted into the outlet, the cover is also pushed up.

The position is fixed. If you move the table in the future, your legs are easy to touch it or step on it.

It is very trouble. We actually not

Another solution: lay out the cable through the fours side of the room.

The cables are grouped from the ceiling and goes down along the wall.

It contained in the white box and fixed on the floor, then leads to each group of desks. It is in the middle of the group desk, like four desks, then it is totally hid inside, and not be seen.

Except fix the white cable management box, we also have the flexible wire management. It can be moved according to your table position.

This plastic click can easy to group all cables and lines together. It can be move according to your table.

To manage the cables and lines very neat and clear, you also need to manage the lines from the table tops. On this aspect, it needs your IT people to do it. After all table tops are positioned well. You people move it, the IT guys should arrange or teach people how to manage the cables. We have meet a lot of companies, they have good cable management, but seldom welly use it. We also can provide the service to group the lines.

Cables for computer, telephone, etc can be put into the grommet in the table

There is a cable tray underneath the table top. All plugs, outlet, and cables are nested in the cable tray, then it managed through the cable

Finally, the modesty panel will cover the cable tray. It is very clear and neat, when the tables are placed together.

As the following photo

